Unilorin GG MAX Poultry Farm begins operations soon *As Buhari visits site to assess spate of work

By Idayat Hassan

The Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Research, Technology and Innovations), University of Ilorin, Prof. Mikhail Buhari, has visited the site of the Unilorin GG MAX Poultry Farm to assess the state of its completion.

Located along Ganmo – Amoyo Highway, the Poultry Farm, an intervention programme under the Central Bank of Nigeria (CBN), is part of the University of Ilorin's commitment towards playing a key role in the agro-based business and further contribute to the revival of the poultry sub-sector in the country. The project is expected to help the country produce chicken meat and eggs in order to reduce importation and close the existing demand and supply gap. (Contd. on page 3)

NAFDAC hails Unilorin management over hand sanitiser license

By Mustafa Abubakar
and Abdullahi Adepoju

The Coordinator of the National Agency for Food and Drug Administration and Control (NAFDAC), Kwara State, Mr. Kenneth Azikiwe, has congratulated the management of the University of Ilorin over the licensing of the University's Hand Sanitiser by the Agency.

Mr. Azikiwe gave the accolade penultimate Tuesday (January 18, 2022) in an interview with UNILORIN BULLETIN during the Technical Entrepreneur Centre (TEC) variety dinner held at the University Main Auditorium.

While urging the Centre to do better, the Coordinator advised the University management to encourage more entrepreneurship.

On the license, he said, "When they approached me and told me that they have a product that they want to register, I thought it was one of those academic talks but as they came consistently, I could see the passion and I called to ask if they really meant it and they said yes. It was a very wonderful thing".

Mr. Azikiwe also disclosed that the license, which is for a period of five years registration, shall include annual assessment to make sure that the quality is maintained, consistently manufactured and continuously following the laid-down instrument and use of personnel. He encouraged the Centre to "bring more products and we shall support them by the grace of God".

He disclosed that he was seeing the University getting involved in such entrepreneurial skill for the first time.

The Coordinator described Unilorin TEC's involvement in students' entrepreneurship training as what the country needs, stressing that the students' gain will assist them to be self-reliant.

Mr. Azikiwe said, "This is my first time of seeing such entrepreneurial teaching, even though the centre tried to explain what they are doing. Honestly, I did not expect it to come out like this. I personally decided to come and see how I can support the University in what they are doing and I can see that it is innovative. That is what the country needs now because when the students have entrepreneurial skills, it boosts their confidence".

Earlier in his welcome address at the formal opening of the Variety Dinner, the Director of TEC, Prof. Peter Oladipo Adeoye, said that a meeting was conducted by the Board of TEC in conjunction with the students to put in all their efforts to win at least one of the prizes in the agricultural sector, creative industry, information and communication sector and science and technology.

Prof. Adeoye said that the event is to showcase what students have been able to do while they undertook the GSE course so as to be able to assess where they are, know what is needed to be done and do greater exploits.

The Director said that it is also an opportunity to relax and have a memorable evening.

In her remarks, the Deputy Director of TEC, Dr. Sikirah Ahmed, appreciated all invited guests, the students, especially the Performing Art students and all spectators.

While analysing the challenges facing the Centre, Dr. Ahmed urged the management to make available more facilities, stressing that the course will help graduates of the University to be self-employed, and generally be able to stand on their own after graduation.

Dr. Ahmed appreciated the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Research, Technology and Innovations), Prof. Mikhail Buhari; NAFDAC representatives; and the Ministry of Labour representatives.

Highlights of the event included drama presentation by the 300 level students of the Performing Arts Department, documentary display of the TEC products, film shows, and stand-up comedy, among others.

Unilorin GG MAX Poultry Farm begins operations soon

Speaking during the inspection visit penultimate Monday (January 17, 2022), Prof. Buhari, who is also the Chairman of GG Max Poultry Farm, commended the effort of his team and charged the team to be proactive in order to meet the deadline, adding that all hands must be on deck now to ensure the success of the project.

The Deputy Vice-Chancellor also paid a courtesy visit to the palace of Alamoyo, Oba Jamiu Oyebola Ibrahim, to notify the royal father about the commencement of work at the GGMAX Poultry farm site.

He assured the Alamoyo that his community will benefit from the project.

Welcoming the Unilorin team to his palace, the Alamoyo, Oba Ibrahim thanked the Deputy Vice-Chancellor for the visit and promised that the people of Amoyo would give all the required supports for the project.

While expressing the hope that the project would facilitate job creation, Oba Ibrahim pleaded with the committee led by Prof. Buhari, to give priority to youths in the area.

NUGA 2022 : 7 varsities end ZONE D Preliminaries at Unilorin

By Temitope Omoniyi

The Preliminary of the 26th edition of the Nigerian University Games for Zone D has been concluded at the University of Ilorin.

Universities zoned in Group D

include the University of Ilorin, Al-Hikmah University, Ilorin; Summit University, Offa; Kwara State University, Malete; Ekiti State University, Ado Ekiti; Federal University, Oye-Ekiti; and Afe Babalola University, Ado Ekiti.

In separate interviews with UNILORIN BULLETIN, the Chairman of Unilorin Sport Council, Prof. Gafar Ijaiya, and the Director of Sports, Prof. Olufunmilola Dominic, expressed gratitude to the management of the University for accepting to host the tournament.

Prof. Ijaiya commended the Vice Chancellor, Prof. Sulyman Ag Abdulkareem, for his commitment to sport excellence in the University.

The Chairman also appreciated the officials for being spectacular and professional in the discharge of their duties.

On her part, the Director of Sport, Prof. Dominic, expressed her satisfaction with the general performance of Team UNILORIN in the preliminary. While thanking the entire University community for the support to Team UNILORIN, she said that the team will be competing in more than 14 events when NUGA begins in March this year.

Prof. Dominic, the first female Director of Sports in the history of the University, assured that the athletes will give their best at the main tournament being hosted by the University of Lagos. She added that the Sports Unit of the University will continue to prioritise the welfare of athletes and motivate them to be exceptional at all times.

Meanwhile, Team UNILORIN secured a comfortable 2-0 victory over Al-Hikmah University in the final of the male category of football to clinch the only available ticket.

The University of Lagos will host the winners of all the preliminaries across eight zones at the 26th edition of the Nigerian University Games scheduled to hold between March 16 and 27 this year in Lagos. The Federal University of Agriculture, Makurdi, hosted the last edition in 2017 with Team UNILORIN emerging 6th out of 57 Universities after gathering 5 gold medals, 14 silver medals and 11 bronze medals.

Use Anatomy to fight crimes, Ajao charges govt

The Inaugural Lecturer, who is also the Chairman of the University of Ilorin Chapter of the Academic Staff Union of Universities (ASUU), explained that the application of the knowledge of Anatomy in crime fighting would help in no small way towards the enthronement of sanity across the country.

Prof. Ajao said that the proper understanding and exploration of the knowledge of anatomy of the bones and other skeletal tissues would also help in the scientific identification of the remains of human bodies, especially during disasters such as aircraft accident, wars and floods, among other emergencies.

He added that the knowledge of the field would also help forensic anthropologists to contribute to the processes of discovering the true identity of missing persons through the study of their skeletal remains.

Prof. Ajao also called on government to regulate the practice of embalming service in the country, saying that this would ensure that the remains of the dead are properly kept.

The foremost academic, who recalled several of his contributions to learning and general human development, also called for the review of the Anatomy Act, which, he said, has been in existence since 1938. He added that it was high time the review was carried out.

Prof. Ajao also challenged the Anatomical Society of Nigeria to ensure the establishment of the Anatomical Council of Nigeria, pointing out that the Council should be charged with the responsibility of regulations of practice of Anatomy in Nigeria.

■ The 214th Inaugural Lecturer, Prof. Ajao (left), presenting the inaugural lecture notes to the Vice-Chancellor, Prof. Sulyman Abdulkareem, last Thursday

He also called on the Anatomical Society of Nigeria to organise periodic workshops with a view to looking into the problems associated with cadavre preservation and presentation, saying that doing so would streamline standard procedure and adherence to them.

Prof. Ajao similarly canvassed for the provision of more postgraduate training opportunities in the field of Anatomy, explaining that such would enable the production of more teachers for the discipline.

Considering the fact that the field of Anatomy is being besotted by nonmedical graduates as obtainable in other parts of the world, Prof. Ajao called for a shift in the training programme from what he called Human Anatomy alone into School of Anatomical Sciences. He explained that this would lead to the revolutionisation of teaching, practice and research in the field of Anatomy.

The lecture, which was presided over by the Vice-Chancellor of the University of Ilorin, Prof. Sulyman Age Abdulkareem, was graced by dignitaries from far and near including the relations, friends, colleagues and students of Prof. Ajao.

Face your studies squarely, don charges Unilorin students

By Abubakar Imam

The Director of the Regional Centre of Expertise on Education for Sustainable Development, Ilorin (RCE-Ilorin), Prof. AbdulAzeez Muhammad Lawal, has appealed to students of the University of Ilorin, particularly those from Ilorin Emirate studying at the University and elsewhere, to always give the pursuit of learning every seriousness it deserves.

Prof. Muhammad-Lawal stated this last Monday (January 24, 2021) while speaking at the grand finale of this year's Emirate Week organised by the University of Ilorin Chapter of the Ilorin Emirate Students Union (IESU) at the University Auditorium.

Prof. Muhammad-Lawal, who was a Guest of Honour at the event, reminded the students that the only way they can attain eminence in life is by ensuring that they not only acquire qualitative knowledge but also ensure that such knowledge and skills are constantly updated for them to be perpetually relevant and create a worthy space for themselves in an ever-demanding life.

The don, who teaches at the Department of Agricultural Economics and farm Management, University of Ilorin, said that it is becoming much clearer that the present and the future belongs to those who are not just certificated but also evidently learned.

He, therefore, counselled the students to ensure that they are never distracted from the path and pursuit of meaningful learning, saying that they need to be focused at all times.

Also speaking, the National

■ Prof. Muhammad-Lawal

Missioner of the Ansarul Islam Society of Nigeria, Shaykh Abdulmumini Hanafi Ayara, counselled students against involvement in fornication and adultery for them to live a healthy and balanced spiritual life.

Quoting relevant portions of the Glorious Quran and the traditions of Prophet Muhammad, Shaykh Ayara, whose lecture centred on "Polygamy and Zina", explained that Allah specifically warned Muslims against involvement in both premarital and extra marital sexual relations because the two lead to perversion.

Shaykh Ayara added that it has even been confirmed that people who distance themselves from the two acts always succeed in whatever they do and have the time and resources to contribute meaningfully to human development, which eventually give them a space in history.

The cleric, who also commended the authorities of the University of Ilorin for ensuring quality service delivery to the students and the society, urged the management of the institution to ensure that the University remains a centre of excellence for it to keep on attracting more students, staff and investment from far and near.

Speaking earlier, the President of the Union, Mr. Ibrahim Ahmad Shakiru, thanked the Management staff of the University for high quality service delivery and fraternity to students.

While also thanking those who honoured the Union's invitation, he assured that his members would remain law-abiding.

The highlight of the event was the presentation of awards to deserving dignitaries including an alumnus of the University and former Chairman, Abeokuta Branch of the Nigerian Bar Association (NBA), Mr. Ibrahim Atanda, in appreciation of their contributions to the development of Ilorin Emirate.

The event was witnessed by the Vice-Chancellor of the University of Ilorin, Prof. Sulyman Age Abdulkareem, who was represented by the Dean, Faculty of Veterinary Medicine, University of Ilorin, Prof. Moshood Raji, the Emir of Ilorin, Alhaji (Dr.) Ibrahim Sulu-Gambari, CFR, who was represented by his Special Assistant, Alhaji Modibbo Sulu-Gambari; and the Dean of Student Affairs, University of Ilorin, Prof. Lanre Tajudeen Ajibade.

Also in attendance were a former Dean of the Faculty of Veterinary Medicine and Chairman, Ilorin Emirate Staff Association, University of Ilorin, Prof. Suleiman Funsho Ambali; a former Head of the Department of Industrial Chemistry, University of Prof. Abdullahi Baba Alafara; among several others.

Focus on Dr. Amali, Ag. Dean, Faculty of Pharmaceutical Sciences

By Abubakar Imam

Dr. Mohammed Otuofu Amali, a distinguished Pharmacist, foremost academic and outstanding administrator was born at Ibadan, Oyo State, on June 11, 1977. He, however, hails from Otukpo Local Government Area of Benue State.

Dr. Amali is the 6th Dean of the Faculty of Pharmaceutical Sciences, University of Ilorin, a position he assumed on August 27, 2020.

This thoroughbred Pharmacologist did not just find himself in the top hierarchy of a foremost institution of higher learning as the University of Ilorin. He prepared for it through adequate training, hard work, dignity and integrity. He began his academic pursuit as a pupil of the University of Jos Staff Primary School, Jos, Plateau State. He was trained at the school between 1983 and 1988. He also attended the Federal Government College, Kano, between 1989 and 1994 for his Senior Secondary School Certificate programme.

On the completion of his School Certificate course, Dr. Amali returned to Jos for his degree programme at the University of Jos. He was trained at the second generation University from 1996 to 2003 at the end of which he earned his Bachelor of Pharmacy.

Not satisfied with the first degree, Dr. Amali proceeded to Obafemi Awolowo University, Ile-Ife, Osun State, between 2006 and 2010 and graduated with Master's degree in Pharmacology.

This erudite scholar capped his exciting academic qualifications with a doctorate degree in Pharmacology from the University of Liverpool, Liverpool, United Kingdom in 2015.

Dr. Amali began his working career as a Member of the National Youth Service Corps (NYSC). He offered his mandatory youth service programme at the State House, Abuja, from 2003 to 2004.

Following the completion of his NYSC programme and armed with a fascinating degree in Pharmacy, Dr. Amali joined the services of the University of Ilorin as a Graduate Assistant. He was employed to teach at the institution's Department of Pharmacology and Therapeutics, College of Health Sciences in April, 2006.

Dr. Amali became an Assistant Lecturer in October 2010. A year after, he was promoted to the rank of Lecturer II in June 2011 and also transferred to the newly created Faculty of Pharmaceutical Sciences. He was again elevated to the rank of Lecturer I in November 2015. In October 2019, he was duly promoted to the status of Senior Lecturer, which he maintains till date.

As a distinguished academic, Dr. Amali has taught several courses at the undergraduate and postgraduate levels since 2006. He has taught no fewer than 15 courses across various Faculties at the undergraduate level. He has also taught more than five different courses at the postgraduate level.

Aside teaching and research, this celebrated academic served as the Sub-Dean of his Faculty between 2016 and 2020. He was a Member of the University Lecture Monitoring Committee from 2019 to 2020.

He also served as a Member of the Timetable Monitoring Committee of the University. He was equally a Faculty Representative on the University Admission Committee between 2017 and 2020.

In view of his consistent exemplary leadership services within and outside the classroom and laboratory, Dr. Amali was appointed Chairman of the Faculty of Pharmaceutical Sciences Dress Code Committee from 2018 to 2020.

Dr. Amali was also the Coordinator of the Department of Pharmaceutical Microbiology and Biotechnology between 2017 and 2019. He is currently a Member of the Committee of Provost and Deans of the University.

Outside the University of Ilorin, Dr. Amali has also given a good account of himself as a reputable, tested and trusted scholar. He served as an efficient Demonstrator and Teaching Assistant at the University of Liverpool, Liverpool, United Kingdom, between January, 2012 and November, 2015. He is also a Board Member of the Pharmacists Council of Nigeria (PCN) and a Member of the Council's Committee on Pharmacy Practice and Functions.

Dr. Amali is a Member of many learned professional societies. These include the National Association of Pharmacists in Academia (NAPA), the British Society of Immunology (BSI), and the West African Society of Pharmacology (WASP). He is also a Member of the Society for Neuroscience (SFN) and the Pharmaceutical Society of Nigeria (PSN).

This distinguished scholar has also published widely. He has either singlehandedly or jointly authored no fewer than 20 scholarly articles, which are attracting the consultations of scholars, professionals and other stakeholders in the field of training and practice of Pharmaceutical Sciences within and outside Nigeria. In addition to the above, he has equally participated in four major conferences and also has 10 commissioned projects to his credit.

Dr. Amali is a recipient of the 2011 Tertiary Education Trust Fund for Academic Staff Training award for Postgraduate study at the University of Liverpool, United Kingdom and the University of Ilorin Central Senate Research Grant in 2010, to mention but a few.

While this remarkable Pharmacist has been a thorough teacher who had always commanded the respect of his colleagues at the University and beyond, Dr. Amali has also been a great role model to generations of students and younger colleagues whose paths crossed his over the years.

Dr. Amali is happily married.

Unilorin, a responsible corporate citizen, says VC

*As KWAVIS holds sensitization workshop on vehicle road worthiness

By Isaac Lewu

The Vice-Chancellor of the University of Ilorin, Prof. Sulyman Age Abdulkareem, has said that the institution is a responsible corporate citizen that always keys-in to any programme that would boost social orderliness in general and enhance the welfare and well-being of its staff and students in particular.

Prof. Abdulkareem stated this last Tuesday (January 25, 2022) while declaring open a sensitization workshop on vehicle road worthiness organised for members of the University community by the Kwara State Automated Vehicle Inspection Service (KWAVIS) at the University Main Auditorium.

Represented by the Director of Corporate Affairs, Mr. Kunle Akogun, the Vice-Chancellor noted that the KWAVIS sensitization programme was part of the corporate social responsibility components of the University's town and gown engagement.

The Vice Chancellor thanked KWAVIS for organising the sensitization programme, which he said would be of great benefit to members of the University community.

He said that staff and other vehicle users on the University campus would learn a lot from the programme, which also includes tips on computerized vehicle inspection.

Prof. Abdulkareem pointed out that as part of the University's contributions to reducing auto accidents on its campus, the management constructed speed breakers on its roads and erected instructional road signals along its main road.

The Vice-Chancellor assured KWAVIS that the programme would get wide publicity in all the media organs of the University, especially on UNILORIN FM 89.3 and UNILORIN BULLETIN.

In his presentation at the sensitization programme, the Head of Operations of the Kwara State Vehicle Inspection Office (V.I.O.), Engr. Adeboye Arasanmi, spoke on the importance of Vehicle documentation, which includes the vehicle licensing and the road worthiness certificate both of which have a validity period of 12 months.

Engr. Adeboye said one of the major conditions attached to permission of using the road is assurance by the authority that the vehicle is certified okay and fit to ply the road.

The VIO Head of Operations advised the University management to assist the VIO to devise a means of inspecting and educating private and commercial drivers on the importance of putting their vehicles in good shape.

In another presentation, the State Coordinator of KWAVIS, Engr. Hakeem Yinka Ibrahim, stressed that vehicle inspection has a way of saving life and property.

He, therefore, urged both private and commercial road users of the University and its environs to check their vehicles regularly, which is a procedure mandated by the government to ensure conformity to all safety regulations.

In his closing remarks, the Acting Chief VIO, Mr. Babalola Mashood, noted that preventive and protective vehicle maintenance is essential for the safety of life and property.

Mr. Babalola told the participants that they could check the authenticity of their vehicle papers by simply logging on to www.Kwavis.com/verify.
